CRISIS REALITY TRAINING

Training for Reality When Crisis Strikes

Jesus Villahermosa has trained and spoken to bus drivers from all over the United States in various safety areas that face our nations school bus drivers. One of the biggest challenges any person faces is learning how and why to trust their own gut feelings when they sense an imminent threat or proximate danger. This training will teach you how to use the C.L.E.A.R. acronym to be more aware of your surroundings while interacting with those around you and help you to realize when it's time to implement a plan of action and mitigate the risk of an assault.

Jesus will also address why recognizing body language is a precursor to violence which could save your life or the lives of others around you! Did you know that body language does not lie and when most people fee there is conflict between what you are saying and what your body language is saying, they believe your body language! It's our mouths that lie and our body language will almost always reflect that if you know what to look for.

Jesus will train drivers on how to extend their levels of awareness and body language recognition so that they can identify some of the precursors of violence and allow them to implement a response of evasion plan. If you have ever wanted to know why you should always trust your gut feelings, then this part of the training will give you the answer to that question.

The second part of the training involves surviving the active lethal threat on the bus. Bus drivers face a unique challenge in that their environment is a moving one, with limited space and everyone in their environment is sitting behind them...and they are supposed to be driving defensively to avoid accidents. But those are not the newest threats our nations school bus drivers face today.

School bus drivers must have plans to respond to an unauthorized boarding of the bus by an angry parent, or a mental health patient trying to hijack their bus while their kids are on board. In a worst case scenario, the driver will need to have a plan should an armed suspect board their bus, as was the case in the Alabama Bus Hostage situation, where the bus driver was shot and killed while the suspect kidnapped a young child from the bus. These are real life situations and Jesus will provide real life response plans that will increase your chances of surviving such an event.
